

Keeping Barriers Intact!

The Basics

Try to keep barriers in a room-temperature, dry place: keeping them in your wallet or pocket for a long time may damage them. Don't leave your barriers in your car or somewhere where they will be exposed to extreme heat or cold.

Use only one condom! Using more than one doesn't mean more protection, it means more risk of breaking!

Lube!

Lubricant (lube) is a substance that is used to add moisture. Dry sex creates friction which can create micro tears in the barrier or on the delicate skin of your genitals.

Oil-based products (including baby oil and Vaseline) can break down latex, so use water- and silicone-based lubes when using latex barriers. Avoid silicone-based lubes when you are using silicone toys as it can break them down over time.

COMPATIBILITY
Sex Toys and Safer Sex Barriers
toy material lube type	SILICONE	ABS PLASTIC	GLASS, STEEL, WOOD, STONE	SAFER SEX BARRIERS
WATER BASED	😊	😊	😊	😊
SILICONE BASED	😞	😊	😊	😊
HYBRID water and silicone together	😊?	😊	😊	😊
OIL BASED	😊	😊	😊	😞*

Tips for negotiating condom use

- > Bring it up before you get sexy
- > Put the barrier out where it will be visible
- > Mention it over text: "so, should I pick up the condoms, or can you?"
- > Make it part of foreplay
- > Experiment with different barriers
- > Be clear and firm about your boundaries

"Why do you want to use condoms – You think I'm going to give you something?"
"I care about my body, and yours, too. I'd rather relax and be able to enjoy myself."

"Condoms ruin the moment."
"Let's make it part of the moment."

"They don't fit."
"We can add some lube to inside of the tip and experiment with some different barriers."

"You don't love me/trust me."
"It's not personal, using condoms is just important to me. This is a boundary for me."

Condom Misconceptions

"Condoms aren't my responsibility."
Sex is shared fun, shared pleasure, and shared responsibility.

"Condoms are for sluts."
Condoms are for anyone who wants to have safer sex.

"Condoms just break."
Condoms have to meet or exceed safety standards. Most condoms break from being stored or used incorrectly.

Questions?
Text us anonymously
519-569-9521

www.doinit.ca

@DoinItSafer

.com/doinitsafer

doinitsafer.tumblr

Graphic designs displayed within this brochure were retrieved from www.scarleteen.com/article/bodies/all_the_barriers_all_the_time

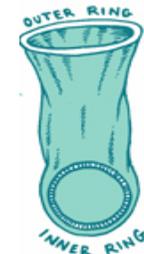

Funding for this brochure was provided by the Public Health Agency of Canada. The views expressed herein do not necessarily represent the views of the Public Health Agency of Canada

The ULTIMATE Barrier Guide

PERHAPS YOU SHOULD CONSIDER...

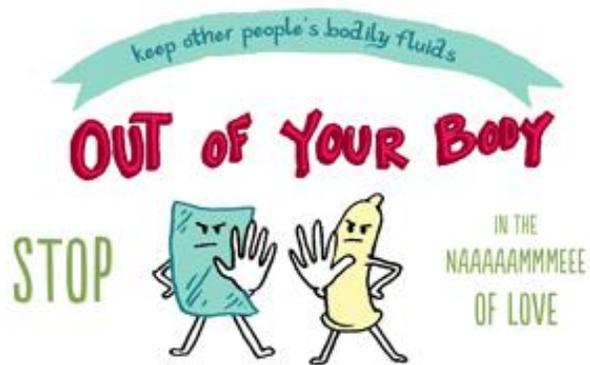

The Inside Condom

DENTAL DAMS!

A guide to all types of barriers!
From external/internal condoms to dental dams and gloves!

What is a Barrier?

A barrier is used to prevent skin-to-skin contact during sex. They help to prevent the transmission of STIs (Sexually Transmitted Infections) as well as unintended pregnancy. Barriers include external condoms, internal condoms, dental dams, gloves, and finger cots!

Who can use barriers?

Anyone can!
 You don't need parental permission.
 You don't need to be a certain age.
 You can get different types of barriers at drugstores, grocery stores, and Public Health/community agencies (like ACCKWA) who even have them for free!

What are barriers used for?

- Anal sex (with lots of lube)
- Vaginal/front-hole* sex
- Oral sex
- Manual Sex (fingering, hand-jobs, and anal play)
- Masturbation (toys)

* Some trans people use different terms to refer to their genitals. We are using the most common words here, but these may not be terms that they identify with. Respect and mirror the words that they use to talk about their body!

CONDOMS!

External Condoms

An external condom covers an erect penis/strapless* or a sex toy to keep semen, vaginal fluid, and/or anal fluid from passing from one person to another during sex. These are typically made from latex, but you can also get non-latex versions, as well as all different sizes, colours, and flavours.

They look like this:

Why an external condom??

- STI protection
- Pregnancy prevention
- Cheap/free
- Easy to use
- Can be cut into a dental dam!

Internal Condoms

An internal condom is worn inside the vagina/front hole* or anus if you remove the inner ring. It's non-latex, the material responds well to body heat, and the outer ring provides a bit more protection against STIs that can be transmitted by skin-to-skin contact.

They look like this:

Why an internal condom??

- STI protection
- Pregnancy prevention
- Free (at sexual health agencies)
- Easy to use
- Can be worn in advance

DENTAL DAMS!

Dental dams are a barrier that is used to cover a vulva or anus to keep vaginal, anal, and oral fluids from passing from one person to the other. They also come in a variety of scents!

They look like this:

Why a dental dam??

- STI protection
- Cheap-ish/free
- Easy to use
- Can be made from external condoms and gloves!

Gloves and finger cots are used to protect us from the risk of infection from manual sex and the germs on our hands. They also soften the roughness of fingers and nails which can cause micro-tears. Gloves can also be cut into dams!

... and remember...

Using barriers on your sex toys keeps you, your partner, and your toys safer!

... and means an easier clean-up!

 if you are using improvised toys (like a cucumber), please use a condom! They are not sanitary and can fall apart, which can be dangerous!